

METHODOLOGICAL NOTES

The territorial structure is valid as at 1 January 2019 and the figures refer to 2017 unless stated otherwise.

Region, district, administrative districts of municipalities, municipality and the basic territorial units are the standard units of the territorial identification which name and code are given by statistical nomenclatures and Nomenclatura of Territorial Units for Statistics (CZ-NUTS) obtained from the Territorial Identification Register administrated by the Czech Statistical Office (CZSO). The nomenclature is an arranged list of codes and meanings assigned to them. Nomenclatures are part of the statistical information system and are updated regularly. Czech version is at web pages www.czso.cz.

Municipality is a basic territorial self-governing community of citizens; it forms territorial unit defined by the community borders. It has one or more cadastral territories. It is a public corporation, has its own property and acts in its own name in legal relations assuming responsibilities stemming from these relations. For some, also statistical purposes, military districts are also considered as municipalities. There were 448 municipalities in the Královéhradecký Region on 1 January 2019. There are the towns highlighted by bold types in the tables. The town with a special statute - statutory town - is Hradec Králové.

Code of municipality is code from Nomenclature of municipalities of the Czech Republic. The number is only one within Czech Republic.

Name of municipality is name from Nomenclature of municipalities of the Czech Republic, its name is only one name within district.

Municipality part can be defined in two ways. Given the fact that it is a unit of the territorial division of the country, which appears on the official list of municipalities and municipality parts, (i.e. in the Statistical Lexicon of Municipalities of the Czech Republic 2005). Unless municipality is divided into parts, it is considered as one municipality part for the needs of statistics. From the subject-matter point of view, however, the municipality part is composed of a group of houses having a common name and land-registry numbers from one numerical series.

Basic territorial unit (ZUJ) is almost the same as Code of municipality.

Municipalities with authorized municipal office (MAMO) are defined by Act No 314/2002 Coll. of 13 June 2002. Municipalities are assigned to the municipalities with authorized municipal office by the Ministry of the Interior's Decree No 388/2004 of 24 June 2004 amending Decree No 388/2002 Coll. on establishment of 'administrative districts of municipalities with authorized municipal office' and 'administrative districts of municipalities with extended powers'. Code of MAMO is municipality with authorized municipal office where its number is code from Nomenclature of municipalities with authorized municipal office (by CZSO).

Municipalities with extended powers (MEP) are defined by Act No 314/2002 Coll. of 13 June 2002. Municipalities are assigned to the municipalities with extended powers by the Ministry of the Interior's Decree No 388/2004 of 24 June 2004 amending Decree No 388/2002 Coll. on establishment of 'administrative districts of municipalities with authorized municipal office' and 'administrative districts of municipalities with extended powers'. Code of MEP is municipality with extended powers where its number is code from Nomenclature of municipalities with extended powers (by CZSO).

District is given by Decree in Coll. Based on the Decree No. 513/2006 Coll., witch modifies the Decree No. 564/2002 coll., on districts of the Czech Republic, were municipalities shifted between the districts as at 1 January 2007.

Region is according to Act No. 347/1997 Coll., on the Establishment of Higher Local Government Units new regional territorial unit since 1 January 2000. On 1 January 2005 by Act No. 387/2004 Coll. were the territory of the Vysočina Region, Jihomoravský Region, Moravskoslezský Region and Olomoucký Region partially changed.
